Chicago 2025 :
How do members and casuals riders differ in the using of sharing bikes ?

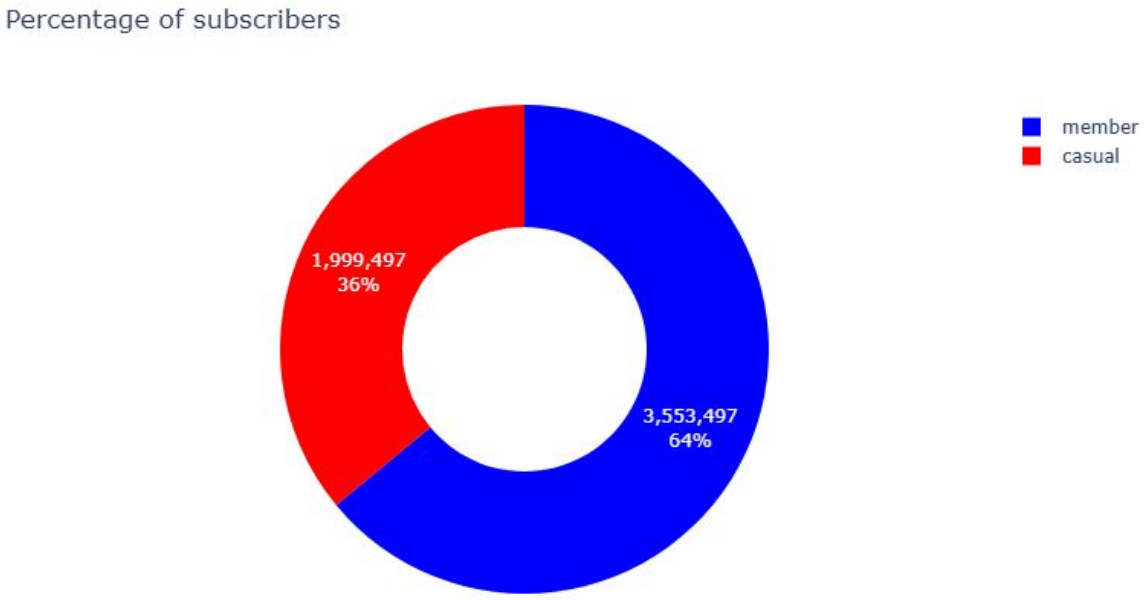
Author : Nicolas Fava
Date : 17/20/2026

Index

- Basic differences analysis
- Temporal analysis
- Spacing analysis
- Conclusions

Basic differences

Total users



Percentage of subscribers
1,999,497
36%
3,553,497
64% member casual

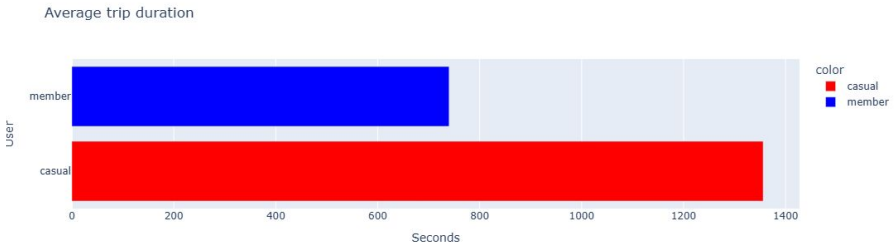
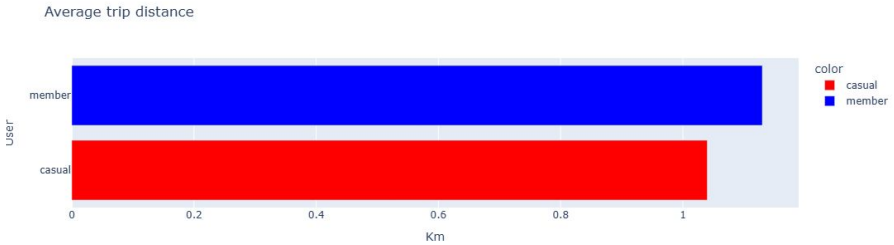
Trip averages

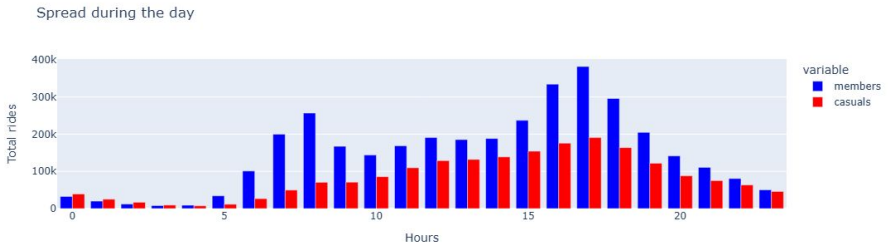




- Member users make almost half of the casual one but faster, probably because need to arrive soon as possible at the office
- Casual users make longer distance slower probably because they prefer enjoy the trip looking at some touristic spot oir monumentals

Temporal analysis

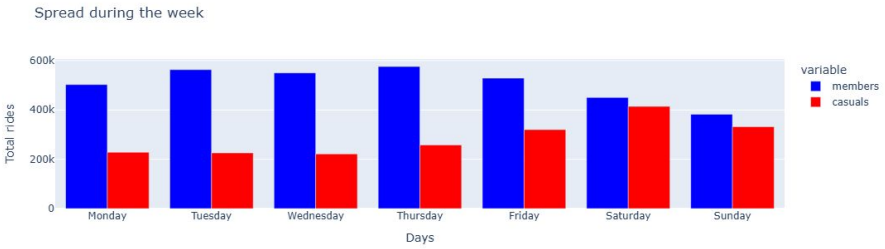
Different use during the day



- Peak hours of member users is 8 and 17, probably they use the bike for go and come back from the office

- Peak hours fof casual users is 17, probably they use to return at the residency from some activity or some tours in museums or parks

Different use during the week



- Busiest days of member users are the weekly days probably because they use the bike for go and come back from the office

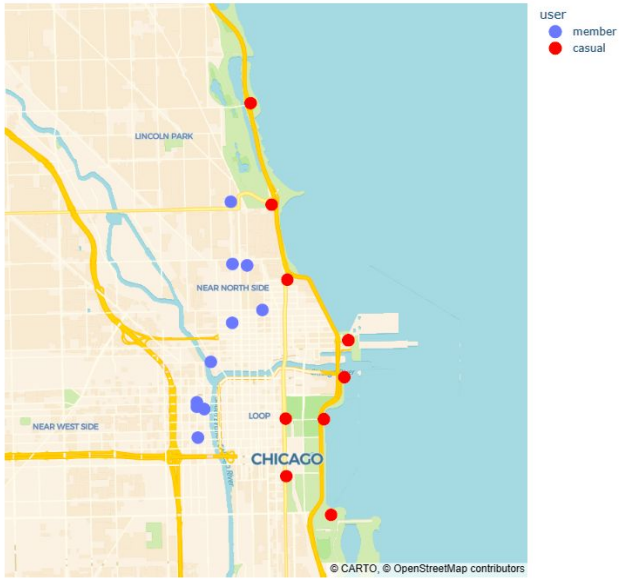
- Busiest days of casualusers are the weekend days probably because they use the bike for heng out and enjoy some spots

Different use during the year

- Peak months of member and casual users are the same, the summer months, probably due to the better temperatures that allows enjoying more the bike

Spacing analysis

Top 10 most used start stations



- Member users stations are concentrated in a small part of the city more residential
- Casual users stations are spread over the coast where there are more attractions

Conclusions

At the end of my analysis i can tell that

- The total amount of users growth compare the previous year thanks to a good business strategy
- The busiest use is during the summer months, in the morning at 8 and in the afternoon at 17
- Member users are workers, students that need the bike for go and come back from the office or school
- Casual users are tourists or locals that need the bike for enjoying a full day visiting some coast spot, some touristic attraction or to come back at home after some commission